

AMPHIPOD NEWSLETTER 28

NEW AMPHIPOD SPECIES AND SUBSPECIES DESCRIBED IN THE YEARS 1974- 2004, ORDERED ALPHABETICALLY BY GENUS NAME.

WIM VADER

This publication is dedicated to Dr George I. Crawford (b. 1910) who has helped me a lot with earlier indexes to AN and who visited me in Tromsø summer 2005, and to Prof. Sandro Ruffo (b. 1915), grand old man of amphipod taxonomy, still actively dissecting and drawing 2mm long amphipods.

Introduction:

Since 1970 I have produced the Amphipod Newsletter, first as mimeographed issues, later via the internet on the amphipod website (<http://www.tmu.uit.no/amphipod/index.html>); these newsletters (27 issues until now) contained annotated bibliographies and occasionally also indexes of new taxa mentioned in these bibliographies. This has furnished me a unique chance to build up a file of new amphipod taxa, and the present paper is a first effort to make these files available to all colleagues. For each species I have noted the name, author, year of publication, the family the species is presently allocated to, and in which Amphipod newsletter

(AN) the original description was first mentioned. (NB For the older taxa, the reference is often to AN 14, as there the index has a separate bibliography, where all papers can be found. It is hope to scan in AN 14 (and AN 18, which also contains an index), and put them on the Amphipod Website.)

AN 28 contains only the newly described species and subspecies, ordered alphabetically by the genus, in which they were originally described; although many of these taxa later on have been transferred to different genera, here only the original genus name has been indexed. Nor have I noted those cases in which species described in this index later on have been reported to be in reality junior synonyms of older existing taxa; cases in point are the family Vicmusiidae, now in the family Acanthonotozomellidae, the genus Spindlerella, shown to be based on juveniles of Paramphithoe, and various Mediterranean Bathyporeia species, which have recently been put into synonymy with older species. In most cases I do not feel fully competent to judge the value of such later actions, and I have therefore decided not to complicate and possibly confuse the files with them here.

The correct family allocations also were often difficult to decide, as many families were revised and realigned after the species mentioned here were described. I have followed the review by Kamal'tynov (2001) for the Baikal species (but note the slightly different alignment of families in the contemporary paper by Takhteev (2000)). For the Corophiidea I have followed the new classification of Myers & Lowry (2003), and for the Talitroidea that of Serejo (2004). The Lysianassoidea are problematic, as the definitive treatment by Lowry & Stoddart has not appeared yet, and a number of family groups are as yet only known by informal names, while in other cases I felt unable to allocate the species at all; these have for the time being been gathered in a catch-all group 'lysianassoids', similar 'rest-groups' exist for the 'melitoids' and the 'gammarids'.

I have used subfamilies in a few cases (Corophiidea, Baikal amphipods, Lysianassoidea), especially where the family allocations have changed substantially recently. But I have not divided e.g. the Phoxocephalidae and Pleustidae into their subfamilies, as I deemed that would not have made it easier to find the genera.

I have made all possible efforts to get these files as complete as possible, but no doubt a few taxa will still have been overlooked. (Dr Ren's ten 1992 taxa were communicated to me by Dr Ariyama at the last moment). A few others were only discovered quite recently and were overlooked earlier, during the production of the bibliographies for the various amphipod newsletters; these species do not have an AN reference in the files. In a few cases, especially in the hard to explain omission of two issues of Amphipacifica in AN, the relevant references are listed in the bibliography below, and the reference is to AN 28.

It is my intention, in later issues of AN, to follow up with a list of new genera and families going back to 1974, as well as lists ordering tall new taxa by family. These lists will then cover all taxa described since the various monographs on the different groups of amphipods were published, and together with them, they will give a complete survey of all described amphipods. (The only possible exception are Caprellidea described between 1970, the year of publication of McCain & Steinberg's Crustaceorum Catalogus, and 1974). The amphipod meeting in Cork 2005 will include a workshop on how such files can be best organized, and whether e.g. the type localities should be added.

I shall be very grateful for all corrections and omissions to these files; they can be sent to Wim Vader, Tromsø Museum, N-9037 Tromsø, Norway, email wim.vader@tmu.uit.no.

Acknowledgements.

During the many years of production of the Amphipod Newsletter, many people have assisted in various ways. Dr George Crawford helped substantially with the first two indexes, while the late professor Jan Stock during many years regularly sent over citations of amphipod papers. In later years I am particularly grateful for assistance in finding literature to Dr Franz Krapp (Bonn) and dr Georgy Vinogradov (Moskva). Dr Traudl Krapp (Bonn), and my postgraduates Cédric d'Udekem d'Acoz and Anne Helene S. Tandberg were of invaluable help in combining my original three files to a single one, and in getting it ready for the internet. I am most grateful to all of them.
